Cura's Founder and Creator of Select Oil Cameron Forni, Announces Leadership Changes

Founder and President Cameron Forni Appointed as CEO and President, SVP of Operations Amy McClintick Appointed as COO

We are announcing Nitin Khanna, who has led Cura as chief executive officer will step down as CEO today. I will take on an expanded role as President and CEO of the company and the brand that I created, Select Oil. Also, Amy McClintick, Senior Vice President of Operations at Cura, will become Cura's Chief Operating Officer. Amy is a proven executive who came to Cura with a deep well of experience in the healthcare and natural products sectors.

Personal allegations against Nitin that arose several years before the company was founded have become a distraction for the company's mission. We are announcing the changes today to continue the incredible work several hundred of our employees have done to build a company and work environment that we're all very proud of. Nitin is stepping down as of today, however, this is a natural progression due to Nitin's decision to pass off operational leadership responsibilities four months ago, and the transition has been in the works for some time.

Amy will be responsible for workplace culture and is authorized to have complete authority and decision making to do whatever it takes to ensure Cura remains a great place to work. We will continue with our efforts to give back to non-profits, promoting a positive and safe workplace culture, and partnering with businesses that have a desire to do good things for the cannabis industry. It also means we will continue to offer many of the programs that we were the first in the industry to offer such as medical, dental and vision insurance at competitive rates for our employees. We also offer regular, often monthly bonuses to all employees and rolling out a soon-to-be announced employee equity program.

We have a proven track record of giving back to non-profits that help women, families and veterans, and will continue to push forward in that mission even more aggressively.

I am excited as we embark on writing the next chapter for Cura and the Select brand.

Sincerely,
Cameron Forni
CEO and President of Cura
